Webinar: Assessment in a post-pandemic world

14:00 Introduction and welcome from ELTA Rhine

14:15 – 15:15

Assessment in a post-pandemic world by Sarah Rogerson

Global school closures mean that even teachers who have avoided online teaching are being forced to deliver lessons and/or content to their students digitally. In the absence of face-to-face contact, good assessment is more important than ever in providing feedback to students and keeping them engaged and motivated. In this session, we'll talk about some different scenarios where good assessment can be implemented. We'll also provide you with a toolkit for carrying out assessment online.

15:35 – 16:35

Oxford Test of English – 4 Skills, 3 Levels, 2 hours, 1 Test! by Samantha Tinkler

Together we'll take a look at the Oxford Test of English. This is a new, online, computer-adaptive English proficiency test certified by the University of Oxford. Developed for teenage and adult learners, the Oxford Test of English assesses the ability to understand and communicate effectively in speaking, listening, reading and writing. The Oxford Test of English is an international test which is used and recognized by a growing number of educational institutions worldwide.

Sarah Rogerson is Director of Assessment at Oxford University Press. She has worked in English language teaching and assessment for 20 years and is passionate about education for all and digital innovation in ELT. Like most people, Sarah is currently in lock-down in the UK. She's trying to juggle work with the home-schooling of seven-year-old twins and loving every minute of it!

Samantha Tinkler is the Business Development Manager for Assessment for Oxford University Press in Europe. She has over 20 years' experience in the education sector. Sam has a BA Hons in English Literature and has a passion for all children to access a high standard of education. She is also Chair of Governors for The Teign Academy, part of Education Southwest, MAT.

Elisabeth Winterwerb-Cossons has been the ELT Consultant for Oxford University Press for Germany and Austria since 2018. Prior to that, she spent twelve years as an English Language Trainer working with international companies and adult educational institutions across the Rhine-Main region. She has a background in Environmental Education and worked in Mauritius, Madagascar, South Africa, Switzerland and the UK, before settling in Germany.
